ORDER DISMISSING APPEALS

These are two separate appeals from district court orders of judgment on surety. Eighth Judicial District Court, Clark County; Kathy A. Hardcastle, Judge.

When our review of the docketing statements and the documents submitted to this court pursuant to NRAP 3(e) revealed a potential jurisdictional defect in both appeals, we directed appellants to show cause why these appeals should not be dismissed based on this court's apparent lack of jurisdiction. Specifically, we noted that it appeared that the orders designated in the notices of appeal were not substantively appealable,<sup>1</sup> as this court had recently concluded in

International Fidelity Insurance v. State of Nevada<sup>2</sup> that no rule or statute authorizes an appeal from any orders entered in ancillary bail bond proceedings, and thus, such orders are not substantively appealable. Moreover, we noted that in International Fidelity, this court held that the proper vehicle for challenging orders entered in ancillary bail bond proceedings is through a petition for extraordinary writ.<sup>3</sup>

Appellants' response to our show cause order was due on February 22, 2006. To date, appellants have not filed any response to that order. Because, as outlined in International Fidelity, orders entered in ancillary bail bond proceedings, such as the orders challenged here, are not substantively appealable, we conclude that we lack jurisdiction over these appeals.<sup>4</sup> Accordingly, we

ORDER these appeals DISMISSED.
