ORDER DISMISSING APPEAL

This is a proper person appeal from a stipulated divorce decree dividing community assets, determining child support, and awarding attorney fees. Eighth Judicial District Court, Family Court Division, Clark County; Jennifer Elliott, Judge.

Our review of the documents transmitted to this court pursuant to NRAP 3(e) reveals a jurisdictional defect. Specifically, appellant is not an aggrieved party with standing to appeal. See NRAP 3A(a). A party is "aggrieved" within the meaning of NRAP 3A(a) when a district court's order adversely and substantially affects either a personal right or right of property. Valley Bank of Nevada v. Ginsburg, 110 Nev. 440, 446, 874 P.2d 729, 734 (1994). When a party stipulates to the entry of an order, that person cannot later attack it as adversely affecting that party's rights. See Vinci v. Las Vegas Sands, 115 Nev. 243, 984 P.2d 750 (1999).

Here, the record reveals that appellant's counsel signed the stipulated divorce decree and that appellant was present when the terms of the stipulated divorce decree were agreed upon. We also find no merit in appellant's claim that the stipulated divorce decree is invalid because it was allegedly inconsistent with the terms of the parties' memorandum of understanding (MOU). The stipulated divorce decree highlights the parties' agreement that "[a]ny provisions that may appear inconsistent between the [MOU] and the provision in this [d]ecree shall be resolved with the later agreements as set forth in this [d]ecree." Therefore, because the parties' stipulated divorce decree is valid, we conclude that appellant is not aggrieved by the final divorce decree and may not appeal from the decree. Accordingly, as we lack jurisdiction, we
