ORDER DISMISSING APPEALS

These appeals challenge the district court's orders denying appellants' motions to dismiss respondents' mechanic's liens as frivolous pursuant to NRS 108.2275. Respondents have filed motions to dismiss appellants' appeals.¹

Pursuant to a construction management agreement between the Venetian Casino Resort, LLC and Lehrer McGovern Bovis, Inc. (LMB), LMB was obligated to supply, through independent contractors, all work, labor, services, materials, supplies and equipment necessary to construct the Venetian Casino Resort (the project). LMB entered into agreements with a number of contractors, which in turn contracted with subcontractors and vendors, to complete construction on the project.

During construction of the project, disputes arose among the various contractors, subcontractors and vendors (respondents), as well as between the Venetian and LMB. LMB apparently refused to pay respondents, which resulted in numerous mechanic's liens being filed against the Venetian. The Venetian filed motions to dismiss these mechanic's liens as frivolous pursuant to NRS 108.2275. On March 9, 2000, the district court conducted hearings concerning the Venetian's motions to dismiss, and ultimately denied the Venetian's motions. Because the district court considered matters outside the pleadings, it construed the Venetian's motions to dismiss as motions for summary judgment.

The Venetian and other appellants appealed from the district court's orders. Respondents filed motions to dismiss the appeals, on the basis that they are not authorized. It is well settled that we will not consider an appeal from a district court order denying a motion for summary judgment.² Here, the district court specifically indicated in all of its orders that there were issues that should be presented at trial.

The Venetian contends that NRS 108.2275 provides it an avenue for appeal because that statute authorizes an appeal from a district court order determining that a lien is not frivolous. NRS 108.2275 provides, in pertinent part:

1. The debtor of the lien claimant or a party in interest in the premises subject to the lien who believes the notice of lien is frivolous and was made without reasonable cause, or that the amount of the lien is excessive, may apply by motion to the district court . . . for an order directing the lien claimant to appear before the court to show cause why the relief requested should not be granted. . . .

4. If, after a hearing on the matter, the court determines that:

- (a) The lien is frivolous and was made without reasonable cause, the court may make an order releasing the lien and awarding costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the applicant.

²See Taylor Constr. Co. v. Hilton Hotels, 100 Nev. 207, 678 P.2d 1152 (1984); Sorenson v. Pavlikowski, 94 Nev. 440, 581 P.2d 851 (1978).

(b) The amount of the lien is excessive, the court may make an order reducing the lien to an amount deemed appropriate by the court and awarding costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the applicant.

(c) The lien is not frivolous and was made with reasonable cause and that the amount of the lien is not excessive, the court may make an order awarding costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the lien claimant.

5. Proceedings conducted pursuant to this section do not affect any other rights and remedies otherwise available to the parties.

6. An appeal may be taken by either party from an order made pursuant to subsection 4.

Thus, NRS 108.2275(4) contemplates district court orders that determine that a lien is frivolous, that a lien is excessive, or that a lien is neither frivolous nor excessive. NRS 108.2275(6) provides a basis for appeals from such orders.

In all of its orders, the district court recognized that it had previously entered a case management order that precluded challenges to the liens on excessiveness grounds but allowed challenges to the liens on the basis of alleged frivolity:

All persons, parties, and litigants involved in the action In Re Venetian Lien Litigation who desire to challenge the validity of a mechanic's lien for being frivolous and without reasonable cause, but not an excessive lien, in the instant litigation must do so by motion filed on or before the 17th day of December, 1999.

Our review of the district court's orders reveals that NRS 108.2275 does not authorize us to consider these appeals. Although the district court's orders underlying these appeals vary, in no order did the district court determine that the liens were frivolous, and in no order did the court make any determinations regarding excessiveness, as that issue was precluded. NRS 108.2275(4) and (6) would permit an appeal only if the district court had concluded that a lien was frivolous, had concluded that a lien was excessive, or had concluded both that a lien was not frivolous and was not excessive. Accordingly, as NRS 108.2275 does not authorize the instant appeals, we

ORDER these appeals dismissed.³
