ORDER DISMISSING APPEAL

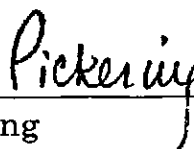

Appellants seek to challenge a district court order denying a motion to exonerate a bail bond and an order denying reconsideration. On February 2, 2015, this court entered an order to show cause why this appeal should not be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. In particular, our order stated that it appeared that the order appealed from was not an appealable order. Int'l Fid. Ins. Co. v. State, 122 Nev. 39, 126 P.3d 1133 (2006) (holding that because no statute or court rule authorizes appeals from orders entered in such ancillary bail bond proceedings, any such orders are not appealable). Appellants have filed a response to the order to show cause, as directed. In their response, appellants agree that the order is not appealable. Id. As we lack jurisdiction over this appeal, we order this appeal dismissed. This dismissal is without prejudice to appellants filing an appropriate writ petition if it is deemed necessary.¹

It is so ORDERED.

¹Appellants state that they plan to first seek additional relief in the district court and, if unsuccessful, to then file a writ petition with this court.
