ORDER OF AFFIRMANCE

This is an appeal from a judgment of conviction entered pursuant to a guilty plea of driving under the influence of intoxicating liquor with a prior felony DUI conviction. First Judicial District Court, Carson City; James Todd Russell, Judge.

Appellant Daniel Corder claims the district court abused its discretion at sentencing by disregarding defense counsel's argument for a minimum prison sentence of 24 to 60 months based on his "sobriety and lack of violations, his business acuity and talent as a landscaper, and the amount of support in the community that was demonstrated by the reference letters submitted to the court."

"A district court is vested with wide discretion regarding sentencing," and "[f]ew limitations are imposed on a judge's right to consider evidence in imposing a sentence." Denson v. State, 112 Nev. 489, 492, 915 P.2d 284, 286 (1996). However, "this court will reverse a sentence if it is supported solely by impalpable and highly suspect evidence." Id.

Corder's sentence of 32 to 84 months in prison falls within the parameters provided by the relevant statute, see NRS 484C.410(1), and

16-901254

Corder does not allege the district court relied on impalpable or highly suspect evidence. The record demonstrates the district court was aware of Corder's significant DUI history, and it belies Corder's claim the district court abused its discretion at sentencing. Accordingly, we

ORDER the judgment of conviction AFFIRMED.
